Reporter Testifies Vs. Libby

Judith Miller contradicts ex-Cheney aide on CIA leak

WASHINGTON | Reporter Judith Miller testified Tuesday that former vice presidential aide I. Lewis "Scooter" Libby identified a CIA operative to her on two occasions on dates earlier than he has told investigators he first heard the information from another reporter.

Miller, the former New York Times reporter who spent 85 days in jail trying to avoid revealing these conversations, said Libby identified the wife of a prominent Iraq war critic as a CIA employee in face-to-face meetings on June 23 and July 8, 2003.

Miller

Libby, then Vice President Dick Cheney's chief of staff, told the FBI and a grand jury that he thought he heard of Valerie Plame's CIA job for the first time from NBC's Tim Russert on July 10, 2003.

Five government officials, including ex-White House press secretary Ari Fleischer, also have testified that they discussed Plame and her CIA job with Libby before July 10.

Earlier Tuesday, the jury saw notes Libby took on or about June 12 that indicated Cheney himself told Libby then that the war critic's wife worked at the CIA.

The discrepancy is a major element in the charges on which Libby is being tried. He is not accused of leaking Plame's name but rather of perjury and obstruction of the investigation into how her name leaked. Libby now says his memory failed him when he spoke with Russert and other reporters. (AP)

BURROWING

That, or It's Time To Buy Mousetraps

Police in Kennesaw, Ga., are searching for a burglar who enters homes by burrowing through the walls. The method avoids setting off alarm systems, which typically are attached to windows or doors. Someone burglarized a home Jan. 8 in a subdivision after entering the house through a rear wall. "That's the first type of entry that I've seen of that method in this area," police Detective Rick Shumpert said. "It's typically a break in a window or door." Police believe the burglar peels back siding and burrows through the sheetrock with a tool such as a screwdriver. About a dozen similar burglaries have happened in unincorporated Cobb County and in nearby Acworth, Ga., police said. (AP)

So Much for Its 5-Star Ram Rating

Would-be thieves raced a car through the ground floor of a Copenhagen department store Sunday but left empty-handed after failing to ram it into the jewelry section, police said. The fashionable Illum department store was closed and there was no one inside the building. Witnesses told police a small car with two masked men crashed through Illum's main entrance before speeding through the ground floor and driving out through an exit at the opposite side of the building. The suspects twice tried to ram the car through a sliding security grill in an apparent attempt to break into a luxury goods section selling jewelry and expensive watches, police said. (AP)

Canadian Women All Release Sigh of Relief

Herouxville, Quebec, doesn't have many immigrants. But that didn't stop officials from passing laws banning immigrants from stoning women, the Canadian Press reported. Canadian Premier Jean Charest said Monday the town's laws, geared toward other cultures, do not represent all Quebecers' views. But Councilman Andre Drouin defended the laws, saying they would make future immigrants fit in with the rest of the town. (EXPRESS)

SEATTLE City Held Liable in Arrests During '99 WTO Protests

A federal jury found the city of Seattle liable Tuesday for the unlawful arrests of a group of protesters during the World Trade Organization meeting in 1999, a ruling that could cost the city millions of dollars. The jury found the city liable for violating the rights of about 175 protesters against unreasonable search and seizure, but did not find a violation against their free speech rights. (AP)

Specter: Bush 'Not the Sole Decider'

Senators on both sides of the aisle challenge president's war powers

WASHINGTON | A Senate Republican on Tuesday directly challenged President Bush's declaration that "I am the decision-maker" on issues of war.

"I would suggest respectfully to the president that he is not the sole decider," Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said during a hearing on Congress' war powers amid an increasingly harsh debate over Iraq war policy. "The decider is a shared and joint responsibility," Specter said.

The question of whether to use its power over the government's purse strings to force an end to the war in Iraq, and under what conditions, is among the issues faced by the newly empowered Democratic majority in Congress, and even some of the president's political allies as well.

No one challenges the notion that Congress can stop a war by canceling its funding. But there are other legislative options to force the war's end, say majority Democrats and some of Bush's traditional Republican allies. The alternatives range from capping the number of troops permitted in Iraq to cutting off funding for troop deployments beyond a certain date or setting an end date for the war.

"The Constitution makes Congress a coequal branch of government. It's time we start acting like it," said Sen. Russell Feingold, D-Wis. LAURIE KELLMAN (AP)

Nominee Calls for New Iraq Actions

Next commander of U.S. forces says it's time to redefine goals

WASHINGTON | Stabilizing Iraq will require "new and different actions" to improve security and political reconciliation, the Navy admiral poised to lead American forces in the Middle East said Tuesday.

in Iraq. He also said he believes Iran would like to limit America's influence in the region.

"I believe the situation in Iraq can be turned around, but time is short," he said.

Fallon, 62, who currently is commander of U.S. forces in the Pacific, said he saw a need for a comprehensive approach to Iraq, including economic and political actions to resolve a problem that requires more than military force.

"What we have been doing has not been working," he said. "We have got to be doing, it seems to me, something different."

Pentagon Halts F-14 Parts Sales

WASHINGTON | The Pentagon said Tuesday it had halted sales of spare parts from its recently retired F-14 fighter jet fleet, even as lawmakers pledged tougher oversight of the military's surplus sales to stop buyers for Iran and other countries from acquiring gear.

Sales of F-14 parts were suspended last Friday pending a comprehensive review, said Defense Logistics Agency spokesman Jack Hooper said. "It was the prudent thing to do," he said. (AP)

Groups Allege Climate Spin

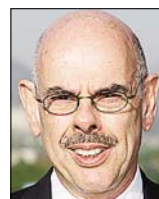

White House said to have pressured what scientists said publicly

WASHINGTON | Federal scientists have been pressured to play down global warming, advocacy groups testified Tuesday at the Democrats' first investigative hearing since taking control of Congress.

The hearing focused on allegations that the White House for years has micromanaged the government's climate programs and has closely controlled what scientists have been allowed to tell the public.

"It appears there may have been an orchestrated campaign to mislead the public about climate change," said Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif. Waxman is chairman of the Oversight and Government Reform Committee and a critic of the Bush administration's environmental policies.

Climate change also was a leading topic in the Senate, where presidential contenders for 2008 lined up at a hearing called by Sen. Barbara Boxer. They expounded — and at times tried to outdo each other — on why they believed Congress must act to reduce heat-trapping greenhouse gases.

"This is a problem whose time has come," Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton, D-N.Y., proclaimed.

"This is an issue over the years whose time has come," echoed Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz.

Sen. Barack Obama, D-Ill., said "For decades, far too many have ignored the warning" about climate change. "Will we look back at today and say this was the moment we took a stand?" H. JOSEF HEBERT (AP)

A West Virginia state policeman rolls out caution tape after an explosion at a gas station in Ghent, W.Va., on Tuesday. Police said at least four people were killed.

Gas Station Explosion Kills at Least 4 People

5 others injured in W.Va. following blast that levels building

GHENT, W.VA. | Fumes from a leaking propane tank exploded inside a convenience store near a ski resort Tuesday, shattering the building into a pile of debris and killing at least four people, authorities said.

At least five other people were seriously hurt at the Flat Top Little General Store, where little remained except twisted metal and a sign showing the price of gasoline.

The blast was felt at least a mile away at a store selling skiing gear.

"I thought we got struck by lightning. The whole building shook. The power went off," said Ben Monast, manager of the Ski Shop.

Authorities said the explosion happened just as a fire truck was pulling into the station in response to a reported leak.

A retired firefighter and a paramedic were among those killed, said Celeste Hinzman, spokeswoman for the state Division of Homeland Security and Emergency Management. SHAYA TAYEFA MOHAJER (AP)

Merck Aids In Vaccine Law Fight

Company financially backs effort to require cervical cancer shot

AUSTIN, TEXAS | Merck & Co. is helping bankroll efforts to pass U.S. state laws requiring girls as young as 11 or 12 to receive the drugmaker's new vaccine against the sexually transmitted cervical-cancer virus.

Some conservatives and parents'-rights groups say such a requirement would encourage premarital sex and interfere with the way they raise their children, and they say Merck's push for such laws is underhanded. But the company said its lobbying efforts have been aboveboard.

With at least 18 states debating whether to require Merck's Gardasil vaccine for schoolgirls, Merck has funneled money through Women in Government, an advocacy group made up of female state legislators around the country.

Gardasil, approved by the federal government in June, protects girls and women against strains of the human papillomavirus, or HPV, that are responsible for most cases of cervical cancer.

THE CLEAN LITTLE SECRET

More steel is recycled each year than all other materials combined. But that's just part of steel's environmental story.

Three-fourths of all American steel ends up recycled into new products, part of the steel industry's comprehensive environmental commitment. Over the past decade, American steelmakers have reduced the energy required to produce one ton of steel by 28 percent – and we've already reduced emissions to levels well below Kyoto standards. Innovation and technology have transformed America's steel industry into one of the world's most competitive, sustainable and environmentally progressive.

Attacks Target Shiite Festival in Iraq

Amid tight security, violence kills 58 on key Shiite holy day

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Bombers struck Shiite worshippers in two cities Tuesday and gunmen ambushed a busload of pilgrims in a series of attacks that killed at least 58 people as more than 2 million Shiites jammed major shrines for ceremonies marking Ashura, the holiest day of the Shiite calendar.

The bloodshed took place despite heightened security following a battle with messianic Shiites who authorities said planned a large assault on Ashura ceremonies. With security so intense at the main venues, extremists chose targets in smaller cities where safety measures were less stringent.

In the deadliest attack, a suicide bomber blew himself up among a crowd of worshippers entering a Shiite mosque in Mandali near the Iranian border, killing 26 people and wounding 47, according to police. At least 12 more died and 28 were wounded when a bomb exploded in a garbage can as Shiites were performing outdoor rituals in the largely Kurdish city of Khanaqin, police said.

Village Unearthed Near Stonehenge

Small houses may have sheltered builders of ancient structure

WASHINGTON | A village of small houses that may have sheltered the builders of the mysterious Stonehenge — or people attending festivals there — has been found by archaeologists studying the stone circle in England.

Eight of the houses, with central hearths, have been excavated, and there may be as many as 25 of them, Mike Parker Pearson said Tuesday at a briefing organized by the National Geographic Society.

The ancient houses are at a site known as Durrington Walls, about two miles from Stonehenge. It is also the location of a wooden version of the stone circle.

DIG IN: Archaeologists work at the floor level of a small house at the Durrington Walls site. The home's hearth is in the center while a line of holes are what is left of a fence.

The village was carbon-dated to about 2600 B.C., about the same time Stonehenge was built. The Great Pyramid in Egypt was built at about the same time, said Parker Pearson of Sheffield University.

Julian Thomas of Manchester University noted that both Stonehenge and Durrington Walls have avenues connecting them to the Avon River, indicating a pattern of movement between the sites.

The researchers speculated that Durrington Walls was a place for the living and Stonehenge — where cremated remains have been found — was a cemetery and memorial.

Stone tools, animal bones, arrowheads and other artifacts were uncovered in the village.

"Clearly, this is a place that was of enormous importance," Thomas said of the new find. (AP)

Truce Takes Hold Between Rival Factions in Gaza

GAZA CITY, GAZA STRIP | Gaza's warring factions began to hold their fire Tuesday as a truce took effect across the volatile territory and brought hopes for an end to the infighting that has left 36 people dead in five days.

But the killing of a Hamas militant by rival Palestinians — combined with an Israeli airstrike on a smuggling tunnel — underscored the fragility of any lull in Gaza's bloodshed.

The truce agreement did nothing to resolve the underlying power struggle between Hamas and Fatah that has fueled the fighting. The two sides have been at odds since Hamas defeated Fatah in legislative elections a year ago, dividing power in the Palestinian government. (AP)

Heat Help in D.C. Difficult

Officials not allowed to obtain addresses of those without service

WASHINGTON | The District wants to help residents whose heat has been shut off, but is having trouble finding them because consumer-protection laws bar utilities from turning over their addresses, officials said.

Without that information, the city has been trying to pinpoint ZIP codes with a history of disconnections. Mayor Adrian Fenty has directed his staff to begin door-to-door visits of homes that may not have heat, letting people know about government utility assistance.

Merrit Drucker, director of the District's Office of Community Relations and Services, called the situation "frustrating," but said that many people who needed assistance had contacted officials on their own.

"I'm trying to scope out the extent of the problem right now, to find out who hasn't been connected," he said.

Debbi Jarvis, a spokeswoman for electric utility Pepco, said the company is not permitted by law to provide information without a customer's written permission.

Washington Gas, another utility serving the city, has agreed to reach out to disconnected households by using mailings and telephone calls that provide information about assistance. Janet Davis, Washington Gas spokeswoman, said the company has given such information in the past.

Terry Lynch, executive director of the Downtown Cluster of Congregations, said utilities told him that between 700 and 800 customers are likely without gas heat. (AP)

D.C. Schools Finances Faulted in New Report

Results of independent audit could help Fenty gain support for plan

WASHINGTON | An independent audit of District government agencies has found serious problems with the public school system's financial controls, alarming officials who say that the city's fiscal health could be at risk if the lapses are not corrected.

The audit could help Mayor Adrian Fenty win political support in his attempt to convince the D.C. Council to approve his proposal to take direct control of the struggling 58,000-student school system.

Fenty and Chief Financial Officer Natwar M. Gandhi plan to formally announce the findings at a news conference Wednesday, during which they will also hail the city's 10th consecutive balanced budget.

The audit, completed last week, was conducted as part of the government's Comprehensive Annual Financial Report, the annual performance review reported to Congress, the mayor and the D.C. Council.

Although the auditors issued the city a "clean" audit, they detailed significant concerns with the school system's internal controls over payroll, procurement, federal grants and medicaid services. Among the areas cited were poorly trained staff, incomplete records, unauthorized overtime pay and inadequate monitoring of federal grant money. DAVID

Six Arrested Outside Clinton Offices

WASHINGTON | U.S. Capitol Police arrested six people Tuesday outside the offices of Sen. Hillary Rodham Clinton.

Sergeant Kimberly Schneider said the six people were demonstrating outside of the New York Democrat's suite of offices in the Russell Senate Office Building around 11 a.m. Senate rules prohibit such demonstrations inside of buildings located in the Capitol complex.

Schneider said the people are charged with disorderly conduct. (AP)

Studying the Antidepressant Effects of Sleep Deprivation

Sleep deprivation has rapid & brief antidepressant effects in some depressed people. NIMH is exploring how a drug that mimics the effects of sleep deprivation in the brain, may also bring about a rapid antidepressant response in people who are depressed. Understanding how this works may help us understand depression and design better antidepressants. Study includes multiple overnight stays & free sleep evaluations to rule out sleep disorders. NIMH is seeking people ages 18-60 with depression who:

- Are free of other serious medical conditions
- Do not have any sleep disorders

FDA Plans Closer Scrutiny of Drugs

Agency set to issue 'report cards' after new drugs are OK'd

WASHINGTON | The public outcry over the withdrawal of the painkiller Vioxx is leading to closer government scrutiny of new drugs to identify and disclose late-developing safety problems.

As part of a pilot program, the Food and Drug Administration will issue drug "report cards" that would detail unexpected side effects that emerge within 18 months of a drug's approval. The reports also would include details about how the drugs are being used.

The proposal is among more than a dozen initiatives the FDA unveiled Tuesday in response to a report by a committee of experts at the Institute of Medicine that criticized the agency's handling of drug safety in the wake of the Vioxx case.

The FDA plan comes just days before Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Mike Enzi, R-Wyo., introduce legislation to overhaul how the FDA handles drug safety.

The Institute of Medicine report was prompted in part by the 2004 withdrawal of Vioxx after research showed it increased the risk of heart attacks and strokes. The report said the FDA needs more funding and authority to ensure it focuses on the safety of drugs while they remain on the market. (AP)

See a Jag, Breathe in Paper Bag

Get some cold water to splash in your face when exposed to XKR

ROAD TEST | Apologize to co-workers with whom you share the company garage. The presence of the 2007 Jaguar XKR will leave them so breathless as to be practically hypoxic. The resulting blue-faced befuddlement may be responsible for an uptick in office mishaps, people trying to sharpen their pens and catching their ties in coffeemakers, that sort of thing. And remember, gentlemen, check that barn door.

Breathe, colleagues, breathe. It's just a car, although an uncommonly awesome-looking car. It will be strange, really, to walk out to the garage and find people gathered around the XKR in twos and threes, murmuring and bright-eyed, as if warming themselves beside some sacred campfire of automotive culture.

Maybe the Jag is just that. Even though the car and company have next to zero in common with the ancien regime, people somehow understand that the soigne XKR means something.

The XKR has racy upper and lower grilles filled with aluminum-finish mesh. Instead of the torpedo tube-like apertures for the fog lights in the standard car, the XKR has flush-fitted trapezoidal panels.

Blade-like aluminum sashes along the fuselage are "power vents." On the back, a bold band of polished aluminum on the trunk plinth gussies up the rear view, as do the mortar-like quad exhausts.

The best detail is the near-ellipse of brightwork around the window opening, a beautiful bit of self-symmetry.

The XKR is a quick breed of cat.

You'll sink deep into the leather sports seat as a deep trenchant warble comes out of the quad pipes and a steely supercharger whine colors the air.

CAR CARE

Should an older car ever be a primary mode of transportation?

Depends what you need out of your primary mode of transportation. If you need something that starts, goes, is easy to repair and has readily available parts, no.

How much of a problem is hydrolock? During the heavy rains, my son's car sucked up some water and hydrolocked.

Many factory air intake systems — and aftermarket units — have baffles and drains to prevent water reaching the engine. But driving too fast in standing water can cause water to enter the engine on just about any vehicle. There is a rule for moving through standing water — do not exceed walking speed.

Record-Breaking WR Keeps It Quiet

Colts' Harrison doesn't say much, but he could become the best ever

SUPER BOWL | Tick, tock, tick, tock.

For 3,600 seconds Tuesday, reclusive Colts receiver Marvin Harrison sat patiently and fielded questions he wouldn't think of availing himself for on a normal day.

But this is the Super Bowl, and this was media day. And only under auspices as grand as these would one of the NFL's best receivers consent to talk.

Actually, Harrison's hour at Podium No. 6 inside Dolphin Stadium was fairly newswy.

It was an insightful, introspective look at one of the NFL's most prolific and least understood receivers. And as surprising as it was to even see him there, so were his takes on the interview process itself.

"It's fine," he said. "I'm not itching to get up. It's the Super Bowl, and where else would you rather be right now?"

While most of the pregame hype surrounds Indianapolis quarterback Peyton Manning's long quest for a title, Harrison is in virtually the same boat. During 11 seasons, all with Indy, he has caught 1,022 passes for 13,697 yards and 122 touchdowns. He reached 1,000 catches more quickly than any receiver in history. He's healthy and not considering retirement anytime soon. In other words, with good fortune and good health, he could surpass Jerry Rice as the Greatest Of All Time.

"That's not important to me," he insisted.

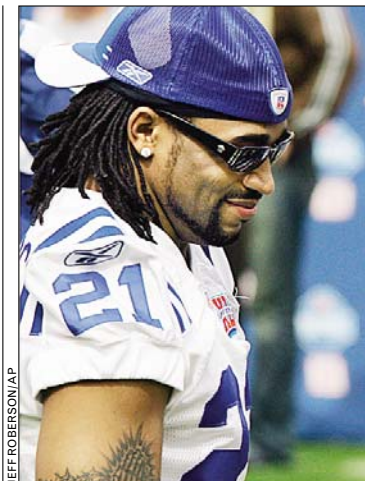

From Harrison, the statement seems genuine.

In an era of preening, end-zone-dancing, look-at-me receivers, Harrison is the anti-T.O. — a polite, businesslike athlete succeeding at a prima donna's position.

He is not a media hound. Harrison sightings during open locker room periods for the regular Colts media are about as common as an Indy snowstorm in July.

But he apologizes to no one, even when faced with the reality that Pro Bowl trips and Hall of Fame legacies are often built in the court of public opinion as much as the stat sheet.

"Everyone has their style of play and their style of celebration," he explained. "I don't think it's hurt me any. I'd definitely like to know, who's won more games between me and the receivers who do the antics and tactics and things?" EDDIE PELLIS (AP)

Colts veteran defensive back Bob Sanders said he likes the idea of a curfew.

Challenge Is Staying Focused

Dungy implements a curfew as Colts prep for Sunday's big game

SUPER BOWL | The Indianapolis Colts had just arrived for Super Bowl week, and safety Bob Sanders was dressed for a night on the town, looking resplendent in a brown suit, kerchief to match his tie and shades.

South Beach-bound, Bob?

"We may get there tonight and tomorrow," Sanders said. "But after that, it's all business."

Colts coach Tony Dungy said he was confident his team would avoid trouble.

"I have a lot of faith in our guys," he said. "I think they're going to come down here and focus in and dial in on winning the game."

"This is a week that you're not going to get to experience all the time. We can't look at it as something we'll probably get to do next year or the year after. We've got to look at this as our time to do it now."

To be safe, Dungy set a curfew beginning Tuesday night.

Excellent idea, Sanders said.

"We've got a lot of young guys on this team who may not understand how important this is," Sanders said. "It's a good thing we have a curfew." STEVEN WINE (AP)

Indictment Could Void Bonds' New $15.8M Contract

BASEBALL | Barry Bonds gave the San Francisco Giants the right to terminate his $15.8 million, one-year contract if he is indicted.

The unusual provision, included in the deal that was completed Monday night, protects the team in case Bonds is charged in the federal government's steroids investigation.

Bonds' personal trainer, Greg Anderson, is in a California federal prison because he has refused to testify whether Bonds committed perjury when he told a 2003 grand jury he never knowingly used performance-enhancing drugs.

As part of the agreement, if Bonds is indicted the Giants have the right to terminate it under two sections of the Uniform Player Contract, a baseball executive said Tuesday, speaking on condition of anonymity because the team didn't announce that detail.

Splitting time with Cedric Benson this season, RB Thomas Jones, left, rushed for 1,210 yards and averaged 4.1 yards per carry. Benson finished with 647 yards.

For Bears Backs, A Split Decision

Chicago hopes to run over Indianapolis with Jones, Benson combo

SUPER BOWL | When he's fresh, Thomas Jones is at his best. Lighter legs give him the lift to sidestep tacklers and spring forward down the field for the Chicago Bears.

This season he's been able to take some plays off, thanks to the emergence of the man who wants to eventually take his job, Cedric Benson.

With different styles, the two Bears runners hope to find a way to solve a suddenly tough Colts defense Sunday in the Super Bowl.

"It's something that has been good for our team this year. It's kept me fresh. It's given us a nice one-two punch. I think we complement each other well with the way that we run," Jones said.

Jones gained 1,210 yards, averaging 4.1 yards per carry during the regular season. Benson had 647 yards and also averaged 4.1 per carry.

The balance was apparent in the NFC title game against the Saints. Jones ran for 123 yards on 19 carries with two touchdowns and Benson also scored, finishing with 60 yards on 24 carries.

The Colts should know something about two running backs because they also use two — Joseph Addai and Dominic Rhodes.

Jones said he expects to get the bulk of the carries Sunday at Dolphin Stadium, but it will depend again on how the game is unfolding.

"Both guys have bought into it, we feel they are both very good players and we want to utilize both their strengths," offensive coordinator Ron Turner said.

"It helps because it keeps them fresh. You get in the second half and both of them have had a chance to get some rest, get a break and you have a feel for the game." RICK GANO (AP)

COLONIALS HOOPS | It was supposed to be a rebuilding year.

When you look at the George Washington Colonials on paper, you see a roster with many young, inexperienced players. In fact, this team was picked to finish fifth in the Atlantic 10 by the league's coaches and media.

Yet the buzz is back around Foggy Bottom, and the Colonials (15-4, 6-1 A-10) stand atop the conference standings. Their play so far this season has fans thinking optimistically. But can they really win the A-10 title and make it back to the NCAA Tournament with a team sporting twice as many freshmen (6) as seniors?

Veteran leaders, such as senior guard Carl Elliott and senior forward Regis Koundjia, think so.

"I think we are definitely going to be in it at the end," Elliott said.

"Though we have a younger team and it is going to take more this season to win the A-10, I believe in this team."

Senior forward Regis Koundjia agrees: "We have a young team, but we play hard and I don't think anybody can stop us."

The test might come over the next few weeks. After eking out at 72-68 win at Rhode Island on Saturday, the Colonials have two more away contests this week — at Dayton on Wednesday and at Saint Louis on Saturday — before heading home to host the consensus preseason conference favorite, Xavier.

Though he admits he's been pleased with the play of his young team, head coach Karl Hobbs says it's still too early to tell where they will finish in the conference.

"We have to wait for the smoke to clear," Hobbs said. "We have a few key games coming up over the next two weeks, but all we have to do is to continue to play hard and who knows what will happen."

A Guy Who Knows How to Hold On

The nation's leading rebounder had to fight just to get a chance

COLLEGE HOOPS | There were so many times he could have quit, so many times he could have given up. Instead, Rashad Jones-Jennings has become one of the nation's most unlikely success stories.

After a nondescript high school career and a brief stint playing intramural ball, Jones-Jennings finally found a Division I school that would use him. He's a starting forward at Arkansas-Little Rock.

And, by the way, he's leading the nation in rebounding.

"He's relentless," said teammate Brandon Nichols. "He's a guy that's going to do whatever he believes it's going to take to get to the top."

The 6-foot-8, 231-pound Jones-

Rashad Jones-Jennings fights for a rebound against Middle Tennessee.

Jennings didn't distinguish himself much on the court growing up. He was cut twice in junior high and played intramurals at Tennessee State because he couldn't walk on.

"I just kept coming back, kept coming back," he said. "Every year, I just kept trying to improve."

After a year at Chattanooga State Community College, Jones-Jennings eventually made it to UALR, where he had an immediate impact in 2005-06. He had 23 points and 30 rebounds in a game against Arkansas-Pine Bluff, and averaged 11.3 rebounds per game on the season, third in the nation.

This season, he's averaging 12.6 per game, almost a full rebound more than second-place Nick Fazekas of Nevada through Sunday's games.

"You talk about a guy that just chases balls, that's him," Flanagan said. "You talk about a kid that just has a lot of heart and wants to be good." NOAH TRISTER (AP)

Years after his death, Andy Warhol makes Pittsburgh cutting edge

It's a chilly Friday night in Pittsburgh, but inside the Andy Warhol Museum, a swarm of stylish 20- and 30-somethings aren't letting that stop them from imagining themselves at a Factory party. Wandering around the lobby, wine glasses in hand, they gather around Pop Art prints. The museum's theater has been temporarily turned into a concert space, and indie rockers the Mountain Goats can be heard tuning their guitars. It's part of the museum's weekly Good Fridays event; admission is slashed in half, and young folks gather from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. for drinks and special programs, such as a mixed-tape exchange, in which participants swap cassettes they've made.

Among them is Rob Conroy, a 35-year-old lawyer and music writer. “The Warhol is one of my favorite things about Pittsburgh,” says Conroy, a native who returned in 1996, after graduating from Widener University in Harrisburg, to practice law (and go to concerts). “I love that it exists here — despite the fact that Warhol is probably turning in his grave. city so much.”

The artist fled home when he was 21 and never looked back. But his legacy looms large, and thanks to developments of the last two decades — cheap rents and plenty of grant money — he'd find it far more welcoming than in the old days.

“People come to Pittsburgh to visit family or college friends, and they say, ‘Wow!’” says Stephanie Giuffre, who moved from San Diego two years ago. Giuffre is a co-founder of Art From Chaos, a collective that puts on avant-garde exhibits and concerts. “Lots of people are working at making Pittsburgh more culturally recognized,” Giuffre says.

LIKE THE JUSTICE LEAGUE OF AMERICA, MINUS THE CAPES AND CODPIECES: The FBI squad in "Criminal Minds" studies a clue.

Killer Television

'Criminals Minds' is grimy and grisly but its appeal runs wide

MIND MELD | The team from "Criminal Minds" is attempting to build a profile of an unknown suspect who must be stopped before he commits more heinous crimes.

Gathered around a desk, the elite FBI squad's brains buzz and leap, their words flowing with clever ideas as they watch Web video and listen to a 911 call.

"We may be asking the wrong question," interjects team leader Jason Gideon, cutting into the combined thought processes of agents Aaron Hotchner, Emily Prentiss, Derek Morgan, Dr. Spencer Reid and Jennifer "JJ" Jareau.

The disparate team, headed by Mandy Patinkin's Gideon, a brilliant behaviorist, also includes computer whiz and fashion freak Penelope Garcia (Kirsten Vangsness). Her appeal, coupled with the public's fascination with murder, mayhem and serial killers, has made the CBS series a smash hit.

The show's regular time slot is Wednesdays at 9 p.m. But the network is giving the series an added push, airing an episode titled "The Big Game" in the coveted post-

Super Bowl slot on Feb. 4.

Executive producer Ed Bernero stresses the special episode won't differ too much from the norm. He defines that norm as "telling stories that are Arthurian in nature. We have someone in distress, a team meets at a round table, is called to adventure, and goes out to battle monsters." The monster on this episode appears to be someone who is streaming viral video of a ghastly crime. James Van Der Beek is the guest villain. Or so it appears. "Criminal Minds" is very clever with its multiple themes and plot twists, so he could turn out to be not at all what he seems, or even just a red herring in the story line about the murder of a wealthy couple after a Super Bowl party.

For a series that often deals in gruesome gore, most of the cast are sanguine about the show's bloody content. Thomas Gibson, who was Greg of "Dharma & Greg" and now plays Agent Hotchner, says, "This kind of material is fascinating to all of us, because right down the street from us is that mild-mannered guy who spends too much time in the basement and turns out to be the serial killer."

Matthew Gray Gubler, who plays clever but technically challenged Agent Reid, says some jokes have crept into the serious story lines: "You need humor to really sell drama." But Patinkin, whose previous TV roles include Dr. Jeffrey Geiger on "Chicago Hope," is uneasy. "It's a difficult show to talk about," the intense actor says. "It's so dark."

Light the Lighters Once Again

Writers get to rock out about their most memorable concerts

BOOK | It's the writers, not the musicians, who are the stars of "The Show I'll Never Forget" (Da Capo Press), an engaging collection of essays retelling memorable concert experiences, edited by Sean Manning. Anyone expecting this to be a book chock-full of concert reviews will be disappointed.

But essays like the hypnotic piece by John Albert tangentially about a Black Flag punk concert from 1979 can make you forget about the music altogether.

And sometimes what makes a concert experience memorable isn't what happens on stage, such as Tracy Chevalier's essay on the backstage environment at a 1977 Queen concert in Landover, Md.

There are nice little nuggets hidden throughout the book, which is organized chronologically by the date of the show. One of the best is at the end of Dani Shapiro's essay about her audition to appear in a Bruce Springsteen video. She didn't get the gig, but someone who went on to be a famous TV actress did.

Subjects range from the famous (the Beatles, Miles Davis, David Bowie) to the obscure (Joe Maneri). So do the writers, who include poet and novelist Ishmael Reed, Daniel Handler, aka Lemony Snicket, and Express' own Arion Berger.

MySpace Is HerSpace

U.K. singer Lily Allen is the country's first Web-made superstar

SMILING | Lily Allen knows precisely where she was when she first realized her "Smile" single was taking off in the United Kingdom, which is where she was for most of the landmarks in her pop career: on the Internet.

"I was in America and Jo Whiley played it on Radio 1 back home," Allen said. "My MySpace [page] just went insane. It was first thing in the morning where I was, but there were hundreds of comments and I thought, 'This is it now.'"

Since that moment, 21-year-old

Allen has become the poster girl for social networking sites in the United Kingdom, reaching platinum status (300,000 units) for her album "Alright, Still" on the back of a hugely innovative digital campaign. With more than 97,000 MySpace friends, Lily is the United Kingdom's first natural-born digital superstar.

"MySpace A&R'd my record," she said. "I'd do songs, put them straight up and if people liked them, they went on the album. The record company didn't think my musical direction was right at all until I set up the site."

In fact, the album's snapshot of British urban life stands as a rare pop record to attract heavyweight critical acclaim and across-the-board sales appeal.

While Allen's ska and reggae influences attract older consumers, the U.K. marketing campaign focused firmly on youth, with many digital firsts clocked up since the July 2006 release, including groundbreaking tie-ins with MSN and online media player Nabbr, but the core of the digital campaign has been Allen's blog.

"I spend two to three hours a day on MySpace and in my Web site forums chatting," Allen said. "Fans need to have some emotional connection with an artist."

Capitol Records released Allen's album Jan. 30 in the United States, and MTV is very enthusiastic. "We fell in love with the video for 'Smile,'" said MTV senior vice president Amy Doyle. "She's such a refreshing change from the pre-packaged pop stars that have been part of the culture for the last year."

Have You Ever Experienced a Traumatic Event?

Have you: • Been physically or sexually assaulted? • Had a serious accident? • Felt your life was in danger?

Have you experienced any of these symptoms since the traumatic event?

- Difficulty getting rid of troubling images or thoughts of the Trauma
- Flashbacks or nightmares
- Avoiding people or places
- Feeling anxious or jumpy

If so, you may be suffering from Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD). Call us to see if you qualify for research on an investigational drug that may help with PTSD symptoms. Must be between 18-65 years old.

Mental health assessment at no cost
Transportation reimbursement is available

NICK @ NICKTROPOLIS.COM: Already the most dominating TV destination for children, Nickelodeon is rolling out Nicktropolis to snag the kids online, too. The Web site features video, chats and plenty of heavily branded games with Dora and SpongeBob.

Law and Orderlies

'The Supreme Court' traces the history of law and its justices

THE TOPS | "The Supreme Court" (9 p.m., PBS) offers a thoughtful survey of more than two centuries of constitutional law, from conflicts between John Marshall and Presidents Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson to the Dred Scott debacle; the court's use of the 14th Amendment to protect property rights during the Gilded Age to the civil rights era of the mid-20th century and the William Rehnquist court of the past three decades.

STOP! IN THE NAME OF LAW: "Supreme Court" makes constitutional law fun.

"Supreme" artfully blends talking-head commentary with historic re-creations and photomontages. One talking head, Chief Justice John G. Roberts, touches on a theme that runs throughout the program's four hours: The court both reflects and at times runs counter to the popular will of the moment. "Court" makes clear that the court reflected popular will in the years preceding and the decades after the Civil War when it handed down decisions defending slavery and then dismantled many of the civil rights protections established during Reconstruction. Then, reflecting popular will or pervasive ambivalence, the court waited for more than half a century to return to the subject of racial segregation.

DESIGNING DULLSVILLE

Bravo offers TOP DESIGN (11 p.m., Bravo), a clone of "Project Runway." Set in the world of interior design, "Top" features designer Todd Oldham as host, and the show invites 12 designers to share a posh Los Angeles barracks and compete with each other. On "Runway," designers are given a modest amount of money to buy fabric and create original outfits. On "Top," designers are given $50,000 and sent to a fancy design center to buy high-ticket items. There is a vast difference between creating stuff and buying stuff, and "Top" proves that big egos plus big budgets equals a big bore.

KILLER CATCHERS BEING KILLED? A serial killer targets the team on BONES (8 p.m., Fox).

PROJECT RIP-OFF: Designer Todd Oldham and "Top Design" are big bores.

TEXAS TWANG GETS ZINGED San Antonio talent auditions for AMERICAN IDOL (9 p.m., Fox).

BUT CAN IT TOP 'CHUCKY'? A demon doll urges its young owner to evil deeds on MEDIUM (10 p.m., NBC). KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Fertility

When ova are scarce, women turn to other countries for babies

Chemotherapy beat back her ovarian cancer, but it took Parisian Sophie Valot's fertility with it. Her doctor said she had just one option to start a family of her own: Find an egg donor, have children and get a hysterectomy — in five years or less, or risk relapse.

But French fertility clinics were in crisis, unable to meet the demand for donated eggs. Strict egg donation laws have caused a severe shortage of donors, and backlogs at clinics reach five years. So Valot took her search abroad.

After two trips to Spain in 2002 and 2003, Valot has two young boys and the family she always desired. She is among thousands of women and couples willing to travel and pay for eggs.

Belgian, Spanish and Greek clinics court women on the Internet, flashing images of pregnant bellies, nursing mothers and frolicking families. They boast large donor pools and competitive rates.

Online forums buzz with women discussing the reputations of foreign clinics and offering advice and support. American women use seasoned French organizations to hook them up with clinics in Greece or Spain. Even with air fares and hotels, the costs can be just 10 percent of treatments in the United States.

Couples looking for black donors, a rarity in any country, fly to African clinics in Cameroon or Burkina Faso. Frozen sperm and eggs can be bought online, ordered from U.S. storage banks by phone and shipped to clinics.

Experts caution that buyers need to be careful about the sources of eggs. "I feel confident that there is deception out there on the part of some people who misrepresent themselves to brokers, and then brokers who don't do a thorough job checking their donors," said Dr. Arthur Caplan, professor of bioethics at the University of Pennsylvania.

In France, treatment is free. The state foots the bill for recipients and donors, who get only the satisfaction of having helped a couple become pregnant. The government has taken a firm ethical stance against payment for eggs, arguing that human parts are not commodities.

American clinics typically receive more applications than they can accept from women wanting to be donors, allowing them to be selective. Doctors and egg brokers offer patients eggs from educated, attractive women and an array of ethnicities.

Donors are matched with recipients by physical attributes like hair and eye color, but clinics are divided on the details women should get about their donors. American clinics offer more information, with some even allowing women to shop for donors who offer pictures and personal statements.

In Europe, clinics tend to be more restrictive. They keep more of the donors' details private, leav-

Eggs From Abroad

But the ethical high road comes at a cost. French women wanting donations wait years with no guarantee they'll end up pregnant and no clear indication of where they are in line. Doctors give patients priority at their discretion. Recruiting a donor is a known strategy for jumping ahead on the list — an incentive aimed at alleviating the shortage.

In 2004, just 144 women volunteered to be egg donors in France, according to the Biomedicine Academy, the French government agency that oversees egg donation. By contrast, more than 2,000 women traveled to Greece and Spain alone for donated eggs in 2005, paying $3,300 to $8,000, according to an Associated Press tally of figures from about 20 clinics.

ing mothers to play a guessing game as their children grow up.

Elodie Thebaud knew nothing about her donor when she traveled to Greece from her rural home in western France. She had three embryos transferred in hopes that one would work.

"I went from nothing at all to almost too much!" joked the mother of 18-month-old triplets who cry and fight for a place in her lap. But Thebaud is all smiles and laughter.

"With three already, we'll stop here," she said. "I think that's enough for now." EMILY WITHROW (AP)

Penn Mines the Mind

Religion

A new center studies how spirituality and the brain interact

Religion and science can combine to create some thorny questions: Does God exist outside the human mind, or is God a creation of our brains? Why do we have faith in things that we cannot prove, whether it's the afterlife or UFOs?

The new Center for Spirituality and the Mind at the University of Pennsylvania is using brain imaging technology to examine such questions, and to investigate how spiritual and secular beliefs affect our health and behavior.

"Very few are looking at spirituality from a neurological side, from the brain-mind side," said Dr. Andrew Newberg, director of the center.

The center is not a bricks-and-mortar structure but a multidisciplinary team of researchers every part of our lives. They make us who we are. They are the essence of our being."

Beliefs affect

ANDREW NEWBERG, DIRECTOR

exploring the relationship between the brain and spirituality from biological, psychological, social and ideological viewpoints. Founded last April, it is bringing together some 20 experts from Penn in fields including medicine, pastoral care, religious studies, social work and bioethics.

"The brain is a believing machine because it has to be," Newberg said. "Beliefs affect every part of our lives. They make us who we are. They are the essence of our being."

Spirituality and belief don't have to equate to religious faith, Newberg said. The feelings of enlightenment and well-being some derive from religion can come to others through artistic expression, non-religious meditation, a beautiful sunset or stirring music.

Dr. Andrew Newberg directs the Center for Spirituality and the Mind at U. Penn.

How does the center test the relationship between the mind and spirituality?

In one study, Newberg and colleagues used imaging technology to look at the brains of Pentecostal Christians speaking in tongues — known scientifically as glossolalia — then looked at their brains when they were singing gospel music. They found that those practicing glossolalia showed decreased activity in the brain's language center, compared with the singing group.

The imaging results seem to support people's description that they do not have control of their own speech when speaking in tongues. Newberg said scientists believe that speech is taken over by another part of the brain during glossolalia, but did not find it during the study.

Other recent studies looked at the brains of Tibetan Buddhists in meditation and Franciscan nuns in prayer, then compared the results to their baseline activity levels.

Both groups showed decreased activity in the parts of the brain that have to do with sense of self and spatial orientation — which suggests the description of oneness with God sometimes experienced in meditation or prayer.

Prayer and meditation also increase levels of dopamine, often referred to as the brain's pleasure hormone.

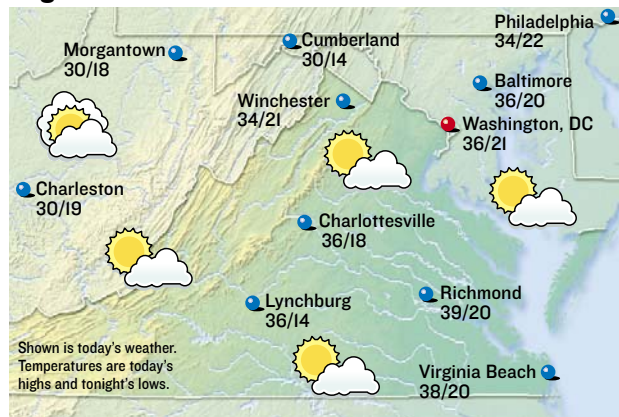

"The mind and the body are the flip side of the same coin," said Dr. Daniel Monti of Thomas Jefferson University Hospital. "Now we know some of the mechanisms by which that occurs, and it's becoming better and better understood."

Conscious that only a handful of men can afford bespoke suits, which cost up to $5,900, Gieves & Hawkes is leading the move toward “semi-bespoke” with a personal tailoring service that allows clients to customize its off-the-rack suits.

Fans of Paris-based Francesco Smalto can spot its suits a mile off, thanks to its distinctive “Neapolitan-style” shoulders — the result of a slight gathering of the fabric at the top of the sleeve.

The French actor Gerard Depardieu scowled in his front-row seat as models paraded in fur-trimmed leather coats and black-on-black waistcoats and shirts. Perhaps, like other guests, he was puzzled by the label’s choice of soundtrack — metal rocker Marilyn Manson.

Perhaps it was a sign of the changes about to take place at the house, whose clients include Sean “Diddy” Combs. Designer Franck Boclet took his bow with Youn Chong Bak, a Swiss-Korean member of his team who will replace him next season. JOELLE DIDERICH (AP)

Beauty

We Can't Face This

Yes, your face is a canvas. But there's no need to cover it completely, which is what Estee Lauder's new RESILIENCE LIFT EXTREME ULTRA FIRMING MAKEUP ($30, esteelauder.com) does. Our tester complained that the formula, which claims to hydrate and improve skin's elasticity, gave her “old lady” coverage — meaning she looked matte as brick and felt smeared in Silly Putty. If you hate your skin so much you want it obliterated, this may be the formula for you.

Men in coats take to the Paris runways

Jean Paul Gaultier sent out models in bouffants, mullets and the kind of muttonchop sideburns last seen in “Starsky & Hutch” in his '70s-flavored autumn-winter menswear collection.

Models strutted out to a disco soundtrack including the Scissor Sisters — pun definitely intended — wearing silky caramel cashmere driving coats and glistening russet pony skin jackets that matched their extravagant coiffures.

Beneath the humor, however, were some seriously desirable clothes. The autumnal palette ran from cinnamon and chestnut to mahogany, plum, inky black and henna red. Trousers in chocolate leather or black velvet were trimmed with cowboy boot leather below the knee and worn with matching shoes for a trompe-l'oeil effect.

Britain's Prince Charles is something of a standard-bearer for wearing kilts, but there was not a knee in sight at the display staged by Gieves & Hawkes, purveyors of bespoke suits to the British royalty since the 1780s.

Guests ambled through an ornate villa, walking past models who loitered in outfits ranging from a sturdy navy wool peacoat to a bespoke black silk dinner suit worn with a gold military tassel belt.

Though the static presentation was somewhat awkward for both models and guests, it was the only way to appreciate up close the subtle artistry that is the hallmark of a made-

Arlington's Enviro-Blogging

ENVIRONMENT | Arlington County has recently received plenty of recognition and praise from environmentalists, green-minded politicians and others about its new Arlington Initiative to Reduce Emissions, which is the county government's plan to cut its own greenhouse emissions by 10 percent by 2012.

Arlington aims to do this by making its county facilities more energy efficient, purchasing a small percentage of its electricity from wind-generated sources and directing all new major county facility construction to meet green building design certification, among other moves.

It's all part of a larger effort to get Arlington residents thinking about more sustainable living.

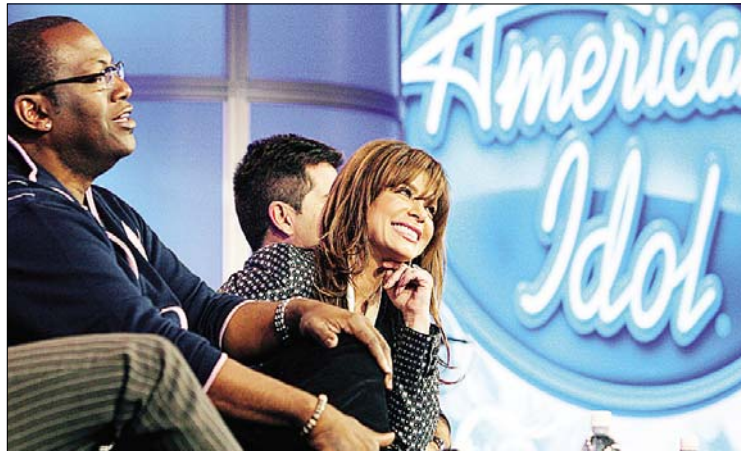

Since public interest can come and go with such initiatives, it can be easy to miss developments. Not to worry, in this case. The county launched ARLINGTONCLIMATEBLOG.COM last week to keep track of its progress.

Paul Ferguson, chairman of the county board, wrote the inaugural post. And the county is getting help from Miles Grant, chairman of Arlingtonians for a Clean Environment, who also blogs at the GREENMILES.BLOGSPOT.COM.

Freedom Rock

Washington Post music critic J. FREE-DOM DU LAC was online Tuesday to discuss which albums to look for in the new year and music bleeding through iPods on the Metro.

At the risk of sounding like I'm telling my kids a story about how I had to walk to school when I was their age, with all this Katharine McPhee ("American Idol") talk and beauty-pageant-winnerner-equals-good-musician, do you think awesome but ugly performers like Iggy Pop and Frank Zappa would make it in today's video-is-king world? Whatever happened to just listening? People still "just listen." [Bob] Dylan and Johnny Cash both had No. 1 albums last year, and the last time I checked, they weren't looking so great.

Do you have any reaction to the proposed ordinance in D.C. banning people under 21 from being in clubs where alcohol is being served?

I think Jim Graham has voiced some valid concerns about safety and security, but setting up age restrictions at live music venues doesn't seem like the best answer. Why should the Black Cat play by different rules than Verizon Center, where kids could still attend events where alcohol is served?

You kids listen to your music too loud these days, what with your iPods. I remember when music was Frank Sinatra. Those were the days. I actually heard somebody listening to their iPod at such high volume the other day that the music was audible from across the aisle on Metro. I wanted to tell him that the new Jay-Z album doesn't sound that great no matter how much you crank it up. But my words literally would have fallen on deaf ears.

Which albums should I be looking forward to in the first half of 2007? Amerie, Amy Winehouse, Bright Eyes, Last Town Chorus, Kings of Leon, Calle 13, Arcade Fire, LCD Soundsystem, Kate Havnevik. Joseph Arthur, Chuck Brown. Lucinda, Antibalas, Dr. Dre and, of course, Ashley Tisdale.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You'll have the chance to make good on a promise you gave to someone else a long, long time ago. It may come as a surprise.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You're likely to be captivated by someone else's seemingly magical powers—but it could be that you're just being fooled.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A loved one may be making overtures, but there are some unresolved issues you must be willing to address before all can be well.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The future looms, as always—but you'll notice something in the distance that had been absent when last you glanced in that direction.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can combine your own talents with the talents of a Cancer or Leo native and double your rewards when all is said and done.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You can join others who share your outlook and your ambitions—and there is no risk of losing your own sense of identity in the process.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may have to do the same amount of work—and achieve the same unerring quality—with diminished or otherwise limited resources.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You can demonstrate considerable power without becoming overly aggressive in any way. Your presence alone will have an impact.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may be in the mood to get away from it all, but any vacation plans will have to be put on hold as you deal with a pressing career dilemma.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You may feel as though you've been caught up in something of a whirlwind. You can trust someone special to calm things down for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You must be aware at all times what your comments can do to others, even when you are being casual and offhanded. Watch what you say.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You should prove more lively and willing to get involved throughout the day. The results you seek may be quite remarkable to others.

Keep Metro Traffic Moving

I'M A PRETTY LAID-BACK person, so rush hour is nothing extremely irritating to me. However, there are two things that irk the bejesus out of me: 1) Riders not checking their fare-card totals before trying to enter the Metro only to see they don't have enough funds, and 2) SmarTrip users waiting for the gates to close to place their cards on the sensor. Don't you think waiting nullifies the purpose of this card?

Special Report solves the "My home isn't selling" problem

WASHINGTON METRO – A "Special Report" explodes what its author exposes as "The myth of slow home sales." In fact, the Report explains, in clear and plain English, how a home owner who wants to sell can not only count on a sale within 120 days but can be guaranteed that the sale will occur.

The Report proves its accuracy by quoting specific local instances in which the technique it describes has sold homes time after time, quickly, efficiently, and at a favorable price.

The author of the report, noted realtor Frank Sanya, has made numerous appearances on both television and radio.

Mr. Sanya states that the Report represents the compendium of his many years of real estate experience and can be of substantial value to homeowners, especially those whose homes have been on the market unsold for a considerable period of time. The author emphasizes that although he does not accept every listing, by following the Report's procedures he accomplishes a sale in every instance in which he is the broker of record.

The secret, says the Report, is a combination of traits and procedures that consistently result in a successful sale. For a free copy of the Report, go to a private but available Web site – www.WantItSoldNow.com.

Metro Launches Memorial Scholarship Fund Honoring Fallen Employees

Metro has launched a Memorial Scholarship Fund in honor of employees who have died in the line of duty. The scholarships will assist with the education of dependent children and help pay for tuition, books, student fees or room and board at eligible educational institutions, including four-year colleges, community colleges and some technical/trade schools. Recipients must have been financially dependent upon the employee at the time of his/her death on the job. Individuals who qualify will be awarded up to $5,000 a year, for a maximum of $25,000.

The Board authorized the creation of the fund in 2006 with a $100,000 contribution. Metro has selected the Community Foundation for the National Capital Region, a 501(c)(3) charitable organization, to invest and administer the scholarship fund.

Metro is asking its employees, labor unions and the public to help sustain the scholarship fund. All contributions to the Metro Memorial Scholarship Fund are tax deductible. Checks should be made out to the Metro Memorial Scholarship Fund/CFNCR and mailed to Starlette Hunter, Community Foundation for the National Capital Region, 1201 15th St. NW, Suite 420, Washington, DC 20005.

The Carlyle Square community, which also includes The Condominiums at Carlyle Square, will offer dining, shopping and green space in a colorful live-work-play environment. The community features more than 20,000 square feet of ground floor retail space for shops and restaurants, complementing the urban lifestyle that is Alexandria's hallmark.

Bordered by John Carlyle Street, Ballenger Avenue and Holland Lane, Post Carlyle Square is situated near the heart of Old Town Alexandria. In addition to its central location near new government facilities, such as the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, Post Carlyle Square offers a variety of convenient transportation options. The King Street and Eisenhower Metro (blue and yellow lines) stops are just blocks from Carlyle Square, allowing residents to make the commute from Old Town to Washington D.C. in less than 25 minutes.

Post Carlyle Square not only offers a great location with many conveniences, our management and maintenance professionals are committed to service and hospitality. After all, it's your life.
